Now, I say that the true policy of the United States is to pay the bondholde exactly what we promised. This is the only way to relieve the luborer of his burdens; this is the only way to relieve the burdens of the country; to make it easier for the people to pay their taxes to make it easier for them to gain a living Do this and presperity will again return your fields will again be fortile, your in dustry will flourly. The Republication party is opposed to this whole system They are in favor of not paying off, but of funding the bonds. According the bonds are considered their plant the funded debt would have all years to run at 4½ per cent. Interest payable both principal and interest igold; and the bonds shall not be subject to tax atton, neither by the State nor by the Campaign of 1868.

ly hirt. The contending parties were neighbors, and the difficulty began in the cariy part of July, growing out of an indecent remark made by Frank Boykin respecting a young lady, Miss Adams, who at the time was under the pratestion and in the company of W. J. N. Wilburn. Wilburn was excerting the young lady home from church at the time of Boykin's Insulting remarks, and on reaching the lady's house, Boykin waited mit! Wilburn came out, when he opened a rapid fire on him with his pistel. None of the shots took effect, but Boykin from that time kept blueself concealed until Tuesday, the day of the fight. In the meantime Wilburn had obtained a warrant for his arrest, and his brother, Jefferson Wilburn, not a regular officer, was deputized to serve the warrant. The latter met Boykin on Tuesday and arrested him without difficulty and intrusted him to an associate while he precared assistance from the neighboring church.

Boykin was, however, rescued by his iends, during Wilburn's absence, and thing further was done in the matter til late in the afternoon, when the
